Berlin Sees Attempt to Wreck Parley

GERMANY NOT DENYING WISH TO PAY DEBTS

Matter Beyond Control Foreign Office Spokesman Asserts

Associated Press Cable
BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Reaction, abroad to Chancellor Brüning's declaration that Germany could not pay reparations any longer was "troubling" an attempt to torpedo the Lausanne Conference by a foreign office spokesman Sunday.

The foreign office emphatically insisted that the Chancellor, in his recent talk with Sir Horace Rumbold, the British Ambassador, and Sir Chamberlain's published interview with the semi-official Wolff news agency never spoke of Germany wanting to not want to pay reparations.

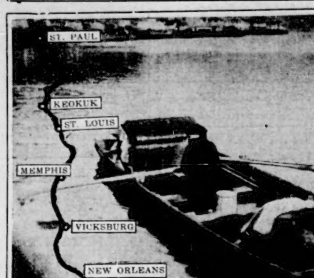

"Matters are entirely beyond Germany's will and it is now merely a question of Germany's utter impossibility to pay," the spokesman said.

Verbalism of Brüning's talk with Sir Horace Rumbold, the British Ambassador, and Sir Chamberlain's published interview with the semi-official Wolff news agency never spoke of Germany wanting to not want to pay reparations.

"Matters are entirely beyond Germany's will and it is now merely a question of Germany's utter impossibility to pay," the spokesman said.

HURRICANE ON BRITISH COAST WREAKS HAVOC

Narrow Escapes Recorded as Giant Seas Crash Promenade

A pilot boat was sunk off Looe harbor, Plymouth, when it collided with the returning mail vessel Beaulieu. The crew was saved.

Sleeper Awakes, Applauds

THOUGHT HE WAS IN THEATRE

Sermon, Then Apologizes

Canadian Press
MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—Rev. Father Hogan of St. Anne's, preaching in the Church of the Assumption of Our Lord in Westmount on Monday morning recently, ended his sermon with a dramatic peroration. As his voice died away a vigorous round of applause came from a man occupying a pew in the rear of the church. The congregation was startled, first, then amused at the unusual occurrence.

Later in the morning, the man who applauded explained to the parish priest that he had fallen asleep during the sermon and had begun to wake during the peroration of the preacher. In the first glimmer of returning consciousness, he thought he was in a theatre and, impressed by the concluding remarks of the preacher, he felt his repugnance could only be expressed by applause. When he realized that he was the only hand-clapping individual in the church, he became fully awake. There he was, in the Church of the Assumption, and extremely embarrassed.

Not that the man in this case was the first who ever dozed during a good sermon. The incident reminded some of the old-timers of an incident attributed to Rev. Father McNamee which was alleged to have occurred during the depression that followed the war. Father McNamee is said to have announced that during the hard times then prevailing, the homeless would find St. Patrick's Church always open, and they could sleep there if they wished, after which he closed the church.

"Sundays excepted, of course," the priest added, "for on that day the pews are reserved for our regular churchgoers."
